

Environment Commitment

One of the world's smallest country now, has the world's biggest commitments to environment conservation. Bhutan has also committed to remain a Carbon Neutral Country.

An abode of gods

Bhutan is a Mahayana Buddhist Country. The sacred monasteries, the fluttering prayer flags and red robed monks & nuns give this kingdom an aura that comes from another time.

Gross National Happiness

Bhutan's unique development philosophy is the Gross National Happiness (GNH). All plans, programs and development activities in the country are based on the principles of GNH.

Nature and Conservation

More than 70% of the country is under forest coverage, while 51% is Protected Areas. The Constitution mandates 60% forest coverage for all times to come which is one of the only few countries in the world with such commitment.

A Global Tourist Attraction

CNN Travel lists Bhutan as one of 17 Best Places to Visit in 2017.

Similarly Wanderlust Travel Magazine voted Bhutan as the favorite travel destination in 2012.

Bhutan Molay Travels also work with local communities across Bhutan. We plan and implement programs in collaboration with women entrepreneurs and organizations. We plough back our profits to grassroots women activities.

Why Bhutan?

Its Culture and Society

Bhutan opened to the outside world only in the late 1960s hence its cultural diversity and richness are profound. When you get it to Bhutan it is walking back into history that has been lost in most other parts of the world.

Biodiversity Hotspot

Bhutan is a biological hotspot of the world. It is home to over 670 species of birds, 10 are endangered. You can see a wide range of flora & fauna.
